Manager's Investment Report

The Phillip Global Rising Yield Innovators Fund delivered a negative half-year performance as at end-December 2023. Over this period, the "B" class was down 1.8% while the "A" class was down 1.9%.

After a volatile early part of the year when markets were seized by the failure of several US regional banks as well as Credit Suisse across the Atlantic, and then agonising over a "higher for longer" interest rate environment and long US Treasury bond yields going as high as over 5% within October, global equity markets finally roared upwards in November and December. The earlier market angst due to expectations for a "higher for longer" interest rate environment --- which is that global interest rates will remain at higher levels for a longer than expected period of time- had led to downward pressure on asset valuations. The negativity was further exacerbated by conflict in the Gaza strip within the Middle East. The subsequent reversal of sentiment and narrative in late 2023, with the key trigger being an emerging view that rate cuts were on the way, possibly as soon as the first half of 2024, was boosted by data that pointed to signs of cooling inflation. This has led even central bankers seen as more hawkish to sound more dovish.

Markets start calendar year 2024 on an optimistic note, on the back of strong positive market momentum from the last two months of 2023. The US Federal Reserve looks to be ending its rate hiking cycle soon, with a "soft landing" being part of mainstream expectations. 2024 will be a year of major elections globally, including in the United Kingdom, India, Taiwan and most significantly the US.

The Fund approach continues to be to invest in global stocks with quality businesses who are resilient in economic downturns and generate long-term shareholders' returns. A focus will be on identifying companies that align strongly with the innovation theme, such as those that capitalise on innovation in offering faster, cheaper, more productive, more cost effective, more compelling products and services. Resilience is also a key criterion, along the lines of both business model resiliency and financial resiliency.
