MANAGER'S INVESTMENT REPORT

The US Dollar Money Market Fund returned 2.52% (bid-to-bid basis), after fees and expenses, over the 6 months ended 30 September 2024, 13 basis points ("bps") higher than the corresponding period last year. In comparison, the Federal Funds Target Rate – Lower Bound benchmark returned 2.71% over the same period.

As at 30 September 2024, the overall portfolio's Weighted Average Maturity ("WAM") stood at 44 days, while the non-deposit investment segment's WAM stood at 135 days. The portfolio remains well diversified across countries, sectors and issuers, with debt issues in financial services constituting the largest non-deposit investment allocation.

During the most recent Federal Open Market Committee meeting in November 2024, the Federal Reserve elected to lower the policy rate by another 25bps citing a better balanced labour market alongside inflation making progress towards their target level. Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve's balance sheet has also fallen by almost US$2.0 trillion to the current US$7.0 trillion from its mid-2022 peak, shrinking at a monthly pace of US$60 billion. Rising geopolitical tensions, elevated fiscal deficits and presidential election outcome posed risks could potentially lead to upside risks for the inflation outlook, although Jerome Powell maintained that existing policy still remains within restrictive territory.

The Federal Reserve recognized that while economic activities have remained robust, an acceleration in economic activities under the Trump administration could reduce the central bank's capacity to lower the policy rate due to inflationary buildup. However, the Federal Reserve also reiterate that while the monetary policy remains well-positioned, they would continue monitoring incoming economic data for risks to labour market conditions or pricing stability and act accordingly. As of June 2024, the US Federal Reserve slowed down the pace of the balance sheet runoff in reducing the monthly redemption cap on Treasury securities from US$60 billion down to US$25 billion.

Based on the United States Department of Commerce's report in October 2024, the US GDP expanded by an annualized rate of 2.8% for the third quarter of 2024 decelerating from the 3.0% recorded for the previous quarter. Economic growth resilience was spurred by robust consumer expenditure, exports and federal government spending, although elevated household inflation, falling private inventory investment and declining residential fixed investment are areas of concern. Going forward, economic growth will likely see some moderation given drags brought about by labour market disruptions and natural disasters.

Our strategy remains to buy and hold high-quality securities to maturity, and to manage interest rate risk by buying papers and placing deposits across a range of maturities (subject to the two-year maturity limit). We expect to target the overall portfolio WAM at between one to two months, with the non-deposit investment segment's WAM at between 130-170 days. Our liquidity strategy is to have overnight and weekly liquidity of at least 10% and 20% respectively, for the portfolio. We will continue with prudent management of concentration and liquidity risks with a wide diversification of issuers and banks for the portfolio.
